Wastewater, natural gas costs forcing Bay utility rates up

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the first of three reports on proposed changes in the Bay St. Louis utility ordinance to raise rates. Future articles will review three options on new rate structure being considered by the city.

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A public hearing is scheduled May 29 to discuss a proposed increase in Bay St. Louis utility rates.

Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. presented to the city council Tuesday an information packet on proposed utility rate revisions and three options to consider.

"We are proposing a major revision of the city's utility rate ordinance," he said.

With this proposal the city will be able to change the rate structure to make each utility self-supporting and to make each user pay a fair share of costs.

The proposed increases will provide additional funding necessary for $2.1 million costs not covered by existing rates, Frankiewicz said.

The new costs include Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District costs of more than a million dollars, an 18 percent increase by United Gas, annexed area utility improvements bonds and interest payments and a small amount for depreciation and replacement funds.

"None of these cost are a result of city operations and all are totally beyond our control and we are angry at having to propose the higher rates," Frankiewicz told the council.

"Despite two years of cutting costs and improving day-to-day operational efficiency, we're forced to pass on costs largely imposed by others beyond the control of the city," he added.

Frankiewicz reminded the council that Bay St. Louis' utility rates have not been raised since 1983.

In this time there have been new charges from the regional wastewater district, water and sewer services have been provided to the annexed area and the city absorbed an 18 percent gas price increase from United Gas, he said.

The sewer system has been losing money since 1980, Frankiewicz stated.

"Gas and water revenues made up for the loss until about 1985 when wastewater charges put the utility system in the red," he said.

Frankiewicz also outlined several cost cutting efforts by the city.

Included in these efforts is a reduction in the number of city employees and reduction of the amount of unaccounted for natural gas.

Unaccounted for gas had previously ranged as high as 28 percent, hit a low of 10 to 11 percent in the past year, Frankiewicz said.

He also said attempts have been made to improve city revenues including "stepped up" methods of collections and an 82 percent reduction of arrears, decreasing from $240,000 to $40,000.

Frankiewicz also said in an attempt to expand city revenues, capital costs of sewer system expansions per customer were reduced from $5,800 to approximately $2,000 through extensive work with engineers and contractors.

In this attempt we were trying to expand the revenue base by spreading the fixed costs to a larger number of customers.

School completes Mitchell hearing without decision on nonreemployment

By DENA BISNETTE

Although the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board held a brief executive session Monday after completing a nonreemployment hearing for North Bay Elementary teacher Juanita Mitchell, no decision has been announced regarding her case.

Board Attorney Lucien Gex stated that once board members make a decision Mitchell will be notified by letter within 10 days.

The board has no specific deadline for a decision.

Mitchell's hearing, opened to the public at her request, had been continued from May 7 after testimony from the first two witnesses, Superintendent of Education Roger Oge and Bay Junior High Coach Gary Blaize.

On Monday, the board heard testimony from witnesses including North Bay Principal Roger James, Waveland Elementary Principal James Baldree, Fifth Grade Center physical education coach Dennis Barcelona, North Bay third grade teacher Denise Wilkinson, District Reading Specialist Sue Sonnier, and Mitchell herself.

In addition, testimony was presented from someone who Mitchell

County school board seeking elevation of proposed site

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County School Board voted Monday to delay awarding a contract for soil borings until the elevation of a proposed new school site is determined.

The board was considering awarding the contract to the low bidder when Rocky Hill resident Johnnie Richard said the elevation of the site needed to determine before having soil boring tests made.

"You may be taking soil borings on a site that will be possible to build on," Richard said.

According to Richard the elevation of some land in the area of the proposed school site has an elevation of only five feet which would require several hundred thousand dollars to build up to the proper elevation to construct a school.

"I'm just asking you to get the elevation before you do soil borings, because it will cost more than 100,000 for every foot of dirt work and you can buy a lot of gymnasium equipment with that kind of money," he said.

Richard and Superintendent Terrell Randolph examined an aerial map of area elevations and determined some of the 40-acre site has an elevation of 10 feet or more.

However Richard said these maps are approximate and could be off by as much as three feet.

School Board Member Wayne King recommended the Hancock County Civil Defense Office be contacted to get information on the elevation of the site from flood plane maps.

JUANITA MITCHELL

chell's attorneys Jayne Buttross and Joseph Runnels said they had not expected to hear as a witness, Board Member Linda Penrose.

On the first night of the hearing, testimony from Oge had established that Mitchell had been given three major reasons for the nonreemployment.

Highway Patrol promises strict holiday enforcement

JACKSON—Memorial Day will be the first major holiday observance since the 65 mile per hour speed law has been in effect and since the Mississippi Highway Patrol has increased its manpower.

"Our troopers will be highly visible during this holiday period, vigorously enforcing the traffic laws," Col. D.D. Cvitanovich, chief of the Mississippi Highway Patrol, said.

"We will concentrate heavily on removing drinking drivers from the highways and do everything we can to make the roads safe for our citizens," he added.

Cvitanovich said the Highway Patrol appreciates having the newly commissioned troopers on the force. Sixty-two of the 71 officers who graduated in April were assigned to the patrol's enforcement division. The remainder were assigned to the Driver Services Bureau.

"We think the additional troopers will increase our visibility which always deters law breakers," the chief said.

The Memorial Day observance was the deadliest holiday of 1986 when 15 people were killed in 12 motor vehicle crashes. Eight of the 12 fatal crashes were one vehicle accidents.

During the 78-hour observance in 1986, state troopers arrested 129 drivers on charges of driving under the influence (DUI) of alcohol or drugs.

"There may be a misconception among motorists that the 65 mile per hour speed law prevails on every highway," James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of public safety, said.

"Motorists need to know they can drive 65 miles per hour only on 611 miles of rural portions of Interstates 10, 20, 55 and 59.

"In other words, 65 miles per hour may be driven only on about six percent of Mississippi's entire 10,823-mile highway system," he said.

Roberts said speed limits are not arbitrarily set.

"Before a particular speed is posted on a highway, whether two or four-lane, surveys are taken to determine the speed that is considered safe. It is important that the posted speed is obeyed, because it is the law and because it has been determined to be safe under normal road, weather and driver conditions," Roberts said.

He reminded motorists that the posted speed signs show the maximum speed that may be driven.

"Road, weather and driver conditions should be good before the maximum speed is driven," Roberts added.

The three-day Memorial Day holiday begins at 6 p.m., Friday and ends at midnight Monday.

Poplarville's Blueberry Jubilee slated June 8-14

POPLARVILLE—Blueberries will be featured at the annual Blueberry Jubilee in Poplarville June 8-14.

This special week of activities will include a political rally on Monday, a street dance on Tuesday, and a gospel sing-a-long on Wednesday.

Celebrity sheriffs will stroll the jubilee grounds looking for people not wearing some blue article of clothing (the color of blueberries). "If you don't wear blue - it's the hoosegow for you," said a blueberry jubilee spokesman. "Your friends will have to bail you out, with funds raised going to charity."

The jubilee will continue on Thursday with a talent show. On Friday there will be a cheerleader's dance. And on Saturday, the day will be filled with special events such as a fun run, gun show, air show and cooking contest. Sunday morning will begin with an ecumenical outdoor worship service and continue with crafts, music and lots of good food.

Memorial Day celebrations set, offices, businesses to close

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Area veterans' organizations are planning ceremonies for Memorial Day to be observed Monday and many government offices and businesses will be closed.

Bay St. Louis American Legion Post 139 will conduct 10 a.m. services at the grave of World War I veteran Clement R. Bontemps.

Bontemps' grave is in St. Mary's Cemetery on Necaise Avenue.

Bontemps was the first soldier killed in World War I from this area.

Following services at the cemetery the public is invited to visit the American Legion home on Green Meadow Road for a Post Everlasting Service at the war monument.

This service is to honor post members who have died in the past year.

Unit 139 American Legion Auxiliary and Junior auxiliary are putting flags on the graves of all veterans in St. Mary's Cemetery, Garden of Memories and Cedar Rest Cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Waveland American Legion Post 77 is also planning Memorial Day services to include an 11 a.m. address by Lt. Col. James Brennen of Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi.

Brief ceremonies will also be conducted at the memorial monument outside the post. The monument honors the late Elwood Bourgeois, James Stieffell and Dennis Ray, who the post is named after.

Hotdogs and refreshments will be served following the ceremonies.

In observance of Memorial Day, both Bay St. Louis and Waveland city halls and the Hancock County Courthouse will be closed.

Garbage collection services in both cities will continue as usual.

Area banks including Gulf National, Hancock, Merchants and Security Savings and Loan Association will also be closed in observance of the holiday.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: I have been laid off work and cannot pay my debts. I have considered filing bankruptcy, but I am afraid that I will lose my car if I do so. I currently owe $8,500 on the car, but it's only worth $3,000. Is there some way I can keep the car and still go through bankruptcy?

A: You have two choices. If you file a Chapter 7 bankruptcy, the person who has a lien on your car will be permitted to sell it. However, you can redeem the car by offering the creditor the $3,000 market value.

While you probably cannot pay the $3,000 in installments to the creditor, you may be able to refinance the car through another lender.

As an alternative, you may wish to consider filing a petition under Chapter 13 of the bankruptcy laws. You are eligible for relief under Chapter 13 if you have a stable income through wages or other sources.

Under Chapter 13, you may keep your car and modify the payment schedule to the lien holder so that you pay the $3,000 owed over three to five years.

I was adjudicated a bankrupt last year and received a discharge from all my debts. However, last month I was convinced by a former creditor to begin making payments on an old debt. Must I continue to make the payments?

A: Such an agreement is called a "reaffirmation agreement." Such agreements are enforceable by a creditor only under certain conditions, the most important of which is that the agreement must have been approved by the court.

Since it does not appear that the agreement you refer to was so approved, you may refuse to make any further payments without being concerned that the creditor may enforce the agreement in court.

Any attempt by the creditor would subject him to the possibility of being held in contempt of the bankruptcy court. You may, of course, voluntarily make such payments as you desire.

Quotables by CUEVAS

I am now taking it easy on my way to recovery from a hernia repair last Friday.

This is my second surgery within a six month period and I hope the last for a long time to come.

I have had the opportunity of using our new hospital and all I can say are good things about the fine care I had received.

One of the things I have noted at the new Hancock Medical Center is the amount of room in most departments.

The medical and nursing staffs all should be commended on the fine medical care our citizens are offered at Hancock Medical Center.

Another thing I noted in my hospital stay was the large number of 'Pink Ladies'. These are volunteers who do all types of chores for patients and visitors at our hospital.

They do such things as give directions to visitors, read and write letters for patients and anything to make a patient's stay as pleasant as possible.

The 'stork' has been very busy at Hancock Medical Center during the past couple months.

Many new members to our community have come into the world at Hancock Medical Center, several two at a time.

As a matter of fact, my wife and I's niece, Amy Corr gave birth to a bouncing baby girl on Sunday.

I have been told her husband Kerry hasn't touched ground with both feet at one time as yet.

Amy has told me she also has received very good care during her hospital stay.

I am glad we have such a fine facility as Hancock Medical Center in our community.

St. Clare School and Church has scheduled their annual Seafood Festival and Fair for Friday, Saturday and Sunday on the school grounds in Waveland.

We know there will be food of all types, as we really enjoyed many of the specialities.

On Friday from 6 to 11 p.m. live entertainment will be provided by Keith Hoda and the Country Sounds.

Saturday's entertainment will include the Sweet Adeline Singing group at 4 p.m. and Huey & Company from 6 to 10 p.m.

Pat Murphy & Band (formerly The Juke Jumpers) will perform on Sunday from 6 to 10 p.m.

This should be an exciting Seafood Festival and Fair, and we hope there will be many who will attend.

We hope to see you there.

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial

From Mississippi Economic Council

GOOD ADVICE FROM GEORGIA

Good advice came to Mississippi a few days ago from the State of Georgia, in the form of an address by that state's former Governor George Busbee.

The Governor was in Mississippi to address an economic development symposium sponsored by Mississippi Power & Light Company.

During the course of his address, Governor Busbee pointed out that Georgia has doubled its per capita income in the past 10 years, that its per capita income growth has ranked third best in the nation, that some 170 Japanese firms have made investments in the state in the past 10 years, and that the state's governmental structure has been revised and reorganized during the same period of time.

Why did that happen in Georgia? The Governor answered that question like this:

"The business people in Georgia decided we wanted to change."

The, said Governor Busbee, business leaders, chamber of commerce members, and other individuals and groups began working together to bring about changes which they determined to be needed.

The Governor had good advice for his Mississippi business audience.

Business must get involved in the election process this summer, he urged, and business must take the lead in the reorganization of Mississippi's government structure and in the expansion of the state's economic development efforts.

Governor Bill Allain

Mississippians 100 years old or older will be honored on Centenarian Day July 1 at a Jackson reception, and the Mississippi Council on Aging (MCOA), Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, is seeking information on these older citizens.

Persons who know seniors in this age group are asked to contact MCOA or their local area agency on aging so that the state's centenarians can be recognized and included in statewide activities sponsored in their honor.

Planned activities include a gubernatorial proclamation honoring centenarians, a state reception in the Old Supreme Court Chambers of the New Capitol, museum and library displays of century-old materials such as photographs, artifacts, clothing and letters and health fairs.

"There is much talk about the problems of old age and about the need to provide necessary resources for older people, but there is another perspective that too often is ignored or forgotten—the fact that older people are themselves a necessary and valuable cultural resource," said MCOA Director Dr. David K. Brown.

"They are transmitters of our history, ethics, culture and heritage and have witnessed changes in our country that have taken us from the one-horse cart to exploration of the moon."

"We encourage all citizens to join us in honoring our centenarians, celebrating their survivorship and lauding their achievements," Brown added.

To provide information on local centenarians, persons may write the Council on Aging at 301 W. Pearl St., Jackson 39203 or phone 949-2013. Information also may be provided to local area agencies on aging.

Health Hotline

Q: I have suffered with tinnitus (head noises) for about ten years. Doctors tell me there's no known cure. Do you know where I might go or what I might do for help? I will do anything. I need help badly.

A: As you have been to several doctors with this problem, I'll assume all the numerous treatable causes for tinnitus, or ringing of the ears, have been ruled out.

The most common of these are excessive earwax, infection of the external, middle or inner ear, head congestion and aspirin overdose, but there are others. As far as I know, there is no specific medical or surgical treatment for tinnitus unless some underlying condition can be found and treated.

Many people with tinnitus get great relief from masking the noise with external sound like a radio or television. You can also try a "white noise" generator which makes a gentle waterfall-like sound. The appropriate expert to consult with this problem would be an ear, nose and throat specialist (he's listed in the yellow pages as an "otolaryngologist"). Good luck with this troublesome problem.

Q: Can you tell me why "Compound W" sometimes gets rid of warts and sometimes it has no effect? Is there some special way it should be used?

A: There is one special situation in which "Compound W" does seem to work fine; when the wart was about to go away anyway. It's always surprised and amused me how often patent medicines get a reputation for effectiveness for this very reason.

In the past, it was "I had a bad cold for a week, then I finally took 'Dr. McTavish's Miracle Herb Remedy' and in three days I was well."

Sorry, gang, you would have been well anyway after ten days. I'm not complaining, mind you; it's this sort of phenomenon that gets us doctors and the para-medical practitioners credit for a lot of cures we really had nothing to do with.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Bill Waller had a good idea to get gubernatorial candidates this year to voluntarily limit spending at the state level to $1 per voter which would roughly be $1 million, but as could be expected, he got a few takers.

At least Waller, a former governor who doesn't have the problem of name identification, except with those voters who have come along the last decade, has raised the issue of campaign spending in the nation's poorest state.

It's obvious that fund raising inside the state is going to be very difficult this year with the state pretty much in a recessionary economy, plus the fact that a big U.S. Senate race is on the horizon early next year.

Very few candidates may be able to raise any significant amount of money outside the state. That, of course, has been the objective of State Auditor Ray Mabus who has been tapping Harvard alumni and business connections around the country the past year or two, getting ready for this race.

Maurice Dantin of Columbia may also have some pretty good connections with oil industry figures in Louisiana, since he has been doing legal work for Pat Taylor, a big New Orleans oil operator who also has a home and ranch near Columbia. Taylor, incidentally, is very prominent in Republican politics in Louisiana.

Some candidates such as Mike Sturdivant, the wealthy Glendora cotton planter and motel chain owner, can put a big hunk of their own money in the campaign, as he did four years ago, but there are very few candidates who can afford, or who are willing, to use their own money.

Jack Reed, the leading Republican hopeful, who also is a very affluent businessman from Tupelo, apparently doesn't expect to get very much of his own money tied up in his campaign. And Waller, who has made good money in his law practice the past 10 years admitted the other day he expected contributors to pick up the tab for his campaign.

John Arthur Eaves, the Jackson attorney making his third bid, is believed to have some problems of campaign debts hanging over him from 1979.

Atty. Gen. Ed Pittman has recently put on a hard pitch for money in a big mailing around the state which underscored the message: We need money now. Attached to the letter is Pittman's own poll made by Penn and Schoen of New York which projects him in a runoff with Mabus, with Pittman winning.

The lesser known in the race, Doug Lemon on the Republican side and Gilbert Fountain, and H.R. Toney on the Democratic side, obviously are going to have a hard time raising money to compete with the major candidates.

In the 1983 race, it will be recalled that Sturdivant reported spending $1.7 million, which was a record high for a single Mississippi gubernatorial race. But the loose way campaign financing laws have read in the past, it has not been possible to get an accurate picture of what is actually raised or spent.

Now the state has a new election law that will elicit a lot more information about who gives to candidates, but even then there are still some pretty big loopholes in the law for gubernatorial campaigns.

For instance, the law still reads that candidates don't have to identify individual contributors unless they give more than $500, although more detail will be required on the givers.

The law also requires the candidate to report only the total of all contributions exceeding $500, which means the old custom of the $499 contribution will still be in vogue. (Incidentally, in local and legislative elections, the amount is over $200 for identified contributors.)

This is in contrast with federal law which requires every cent of contributions and expenditures to be reported.

The roughest fund raising task, of course, faces the Democratic candidate who must finance two primary campaigns and, if successful there, then faces a major third campaign in November against a Republican foe.

No wonder many political candidates in Mississippi are hopeful that the state can someday get the "open primary" system which only Louisiana has, although the idea was conceived in Mississippi back in the 1960s.

Under the open primary, no candidate has to run more than two times to be elected. All candidates, regardless of party or independent, run in the first or open primary, and if no one receives a majority, the two highest go into the general election.

Mississippi has never been able to get clearance from the U.S. Justice Department on establishing the open primary system. But it has at least moved closer to it under the new election law approved by Justice which requires independent candidates to qualify at the same time as party candidates.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

Several years ago, our nation's Commander-in-Chief Ronald Reagan spoke to a special group of veterans on the top of a cliff overlooking a beach in Normandy, France.

They were the "boys" who had scaled that cliff 40 years before on D-Day, as America and her allies began a crusade in Europe.

Their story was heroic, but not unique. It was the story of millions of Americans who have served in uniform—the story of all of those who have been prepared to make the supreme sacrifice, should duty call, to protect liberty, to protect democracy and to protect this blessed land.

A part of the pride of every American is that it is the story of the American spirit as its finest.

John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, once wrote, "Posterity, you will never know how much it has cost the present generation to preserve your freedom. I hope you will make good use of it."

Monday, May 25, is Memorial Day, a time when we must ask that posterity not forget how much it has cost our generation to preserve freedom.

I would like to share just a few simple thoughts which I trust will help all of us to renew our commitment to the worthy cause for which our loved ones, neighbors and friends have sacrificed their lives.

First, I think that it is important to realize that we are not honoring men of war—we are honoring men of peace.

The one thing that stands out most clearly when we look at history is this: America is not a fighting nation. Like the classical "citizen-soldier," Americans have left their plowing in the field, donned uniforms and gone off to serve their country and the higher call of freedom.

They were, and still are, part of mainstream America, working for the security of their families and nation, sharing the burden of that nation, exercising their rights to criticize their government, but always offering support and encouragement as concerned citizens. And then, they were called.

We honor America's war dead on Memorial Day because they fought and died for a true, just and last peace for all people. We may never be able to repay our debt to them. However, to truly honor their sacrifice, we must continue to uphold the freedom for which they died.

For that reason, I wholeheartedly support President Reagan's defense proposals that contribute to a strong national defense. The President has observed that the restoration of economic growth and military deterrence, and a growing spirit of unity among our people at home and our allies abroad underline a fundamental and far-reaching change. The United States is safer, stronger and more secure today than ever before. We can now move with confidence to seize the opportunities for peace—and we will.

NSTL's Shuttle Engine Test Program reaches milestone

A SPACE SHUTTLE main engine undergoes a test firing at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories.

An 850-second firing of a Space Shuttle main engine was conducted May 9 on the A-1 stand to mark a major milestone in NASA's ground test program at the National Space Technology Laboratories.

According to Joyce Mix, Marshall Space Flight Center's Shuttle Project Office resident manager, the lengthy firing was the longest conducted in the history of the main engine test program.

Mix said, "In the past, we have always run mission duration tests on the main engines. But now we are beginning to move into limit-testing the engine system to demonstrate its additional marginal capability." A mission duration firing is 620 seconds, the approximate time the three main engines operate in an actual shuttle mission.

Mix noted that the 850-second firing on engine 2105 provided sufficient margin of run time beyond that required of the main engines during the worst possible abort phase.

A 761-second firing was conducted on this same engine in February as a return-to-launch-site abort profile. The test simulated the actual duration an engine would be required to operate if one of the three main engines were to fail between liftoff and the point at which the next abort mode would be available. That mode would not begin until the solid rocket motors were jettisoned.

Mix said the 850-second firing also tested additional marginal limits of the facility functions which support the ground test program at NSTL. Those support areas include the high-pressure water and gas facilities as well as cryogenic propellants.

Engine 2105 is used only as a research and development engine for certifying design modifications and is not intended for use in an actual shuttle flight. Mix said the engine has acquired 23,700 seconds of run time and NASA is planning to test the engine to 30,000 seconds before flights resume next year.

He pointed out that all of the engine's components have not acquired this total amount of test time. He said, "Although the entire engine system has accumulated 23,700 seconds of run time, components are periodically being changed out for inspection. For instance, turbopumps require maintenance at 5,000-second intervals."

A modified nickel-plated main combustion chamber, which is stronger than those previously used, has acquired 13,192 seconds of test time on the engine. However, the powerhead and most of the running gear have remained on the engine throughout the duration of the test series.

Since the beginning of the year 15,791 seconds of testing have been run on shuttle main engines.

Bradley, Abrams tanks among Guard hardware to be displayed at Shelby

GuardFest '87, the Mississippi National Guard's second annual training and equipment expo, will provide an excellent opportunity for Mississippians to see the state-of-the-art equipment and techniques now being used by Magnolia State guardsmen.

On Friday, May 29 festival to be held on the Parade Field at Camp Shelby from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m., will include jet fly-overs, helicopter displays and demonstrations, an air mobile demonstration and live music.

The Mississippi Army National Guard is now training with the M-1 "Abrams" tank, the Army's most sophisticated weapon, and the Bradley Fighting Vehicle, which provides improved mobility and firepower for infantry and cavalry units.

These two types of tracked vehicles will be among the dozens of tanks, communications vans, mobile command vehicles, and engineer equipment displayed.

The C-141 "Starlifter" cargo jet will perform a fly-over during the GuardFest activities, showing guests the Air National Guard's newest aircraft. The 172nd Military Airlift Group in Jackson is the first Air Guard unit in the United States to receive the C-141s.

Visitors interested in seeing historical display can catch the shuttle bus to the nearby archives building, where equipment, clothing and weapons dating back to the Civil War are exhibited.

Also, on the Parade Field, Stanford's Mississippi Battery, a Civil War reenactment group, will set up an historically correct 1863 Artillery encampment, complete with cannons.

The air mobile operation will take place at the Parade Field, beginning with a helicopter rappel and ending with an assault by members of Camp Shelby's Region III NGB Non-Commissioned Officers School.

The Region III School staff is composed of numerous soldiers with backgrounds in specialized skills, allowing them to perform a diverse range of demonstrations, from rappelling to infantry tactics to survival skills.

Seven different helicopters will be displayed near the Parade Field. These aircraft will highlight the mobility of the National Guard. The UH-1 "Huey," the workhorse of the Vietnam War, will be used in the air mobile operation. One of the more sophisticated aircraft displayed will be the A-10 "Cobra" attack helicopter.

Other fly-overs will include RF-4 "Phantom" reconnaissance jets, based in Meridian; A-10 "Thunderbolt" attack jets, out of New Orleans and a CH-54 "Skycrane" helicopter fly-over and demonstration. The "Skycrane" is part of the 3248th Transportation Company inventory, located in Meridian.

Children will enjoy the camouflage tent, where soldiers will paint the kids' faces using water-based camouflage cream. Also, each child will receive a camouflage headband.

Musical entertainment will feature Andy Anderson and several members of "The Original Rolling Stones," Mississippi's own rock and rollers of the mid-1950s, performing a jam session. Members of the Mississippi Air National Guard in Meridian will pick some acoustic tunes, playing folk, country and whatever else comes to mind. Special musical entertainment will be the Mississippi Guard's 41st Army Band.

GuardFest will be held at Camp Shelby, ten miles south of Hattiesburg on Highway 49, and is free and open to the general public. For additional information, call 1-800-962-2443.

ment recommendation that she had received.

Those reasons included Mitchell's alleged tardiness that repeatedly left her class unsupervised between the beginning of the school day and her arrival, allegations that she failed to use the district's instructional management plan in teaching reading and allegations of failure to complete assigned tasks.

Oge had also testified regarding Mitchell's copying of documents in her personnel file and later discovery of a second file on Mitchell that included letters pertaining to an Equal Opportunity Employment Commission complaint that she had filed against the school district in 1984.

James, who has been Mitchell's principal since the beginning of the 1985-86 school year, was the first witness called Monday by Rannels and Buttross, who had also called the two previous witnesses.

James first answered questions regarding a May 7 telephone call from Rannels, stating that he remembered being asked whether he had recommended Mitchell for reemployment and that he had recommended that her contract be extended for the 1987-88 school year.

He stated that he did not recall Oge, who had made the nonreemployment recommendation, discussing the matter with him. "He doesn't have to and did not," James explained, stating that he did not specifically recall what he had replied to Rannels' telephone inquiry about the matter "but that it should have been no, we did not" (discuss the recommendation).

James also said he had talked to Oge about Mitchell's alleged problems in the past, "off and on, as we talked about all of the faculty."

Under cross-examination by Gex, James testified he had seen Mitchell report to work late "quite often," a term Rannels objected was nonspecific.

As Gex continued questioning, James explained that the school day begins with an assembly in which each class, with its teacher, stands in a group on the sidewalk in front of its classroom door to pledge allegiance to a flag on the school grounds.

He stated that if a teacher failed to come in on time, a teacher next door observed the unsupervised class or he observed the class himself.

James stated that Mitchell had had "a lot of problems" with tardiness during the 1985-86 school year, but not as many as during the previous year.

Over objections from Mitchell's attorneys, James gave an affirmative response to a question regarding whether he had ever observed someone else signing in for Mitchell on a day she arrived late.

The principal also stated that Mitchell had informed him in February or March of this year that she did not have a copy of the district's instructional management plan (IMP) for her grade level and that her lesson plans did not show numbers indicating she was using the IMP.

Under redirect procedures, Buttross and Rannels produced as evidence a North Bay sign-in sheet showing that Mitchell and several other people who reported to work on that particular day were late.

The date of the sheet corresponded with the date of a letter in which James had reprimanded Mitchell for her alleged repeated tardiness.

Rannels asked if the principal had written other letters to late teachers. "You asked me if I wrote each teacher a letter and I said no, I did not," James stated, when the attorney asked him to clarify his answer.

He also told the attorneys he did not know why Mitchell did not have a third grade IMP and that the previous teacher was supposed to have left a copy in the classroom.

He said the third grade plan had the name of the previous teacher on it only because she had assisted in writing the IMP, adding that the plans belong to a specific grade or program, such as reading, but not to a specific teacher.

The principal said that the third grade uses five different plans for various subject areas. When Mitchell told him she had no copies of any of them, he did not provide any because "it would have cost me to run off five additional plans and I don't have the power to do that."

James added that he knew she did not have and was not using an IMP when he recommended her for reemployment.

For clarification purposes, Gex asked James if he had ever observed Mitchell being absent from the morning assembly.

The principal stated that she had been absent from it "quite often."

The next witness, also called by Buttross and Rannels, was Baldree, Mitchell's previous principal.

He testified that he had never actually discussed Mitchell's record with Oge but that he had discussed her with James in administrative meetings where Oge was present.

Baldree said he believed Oge had probably gotten information regarding Mitchell's work at Waveland Elementary School from documents in her personnel file.

Buttross said the records indicated "that you and Mitchell were not without your differences."

"I'm not sure how you would define 'differences,'" Baldree said. "As far as working with each other, talking about personalities, Mrs. Mitchell and I got along quite well."

Gex declined cross-examination at that point, saying he preferred to call upon Baldree later as a board witness.

Barcelona, now a physical education coach and spelling teacher at Fifth Grade Center, testified that he had worked with Mitchell for several years at Waveland Elementary.

He stated that he recalled Mitchell telling him during the 1984-85 school year that she was being questioned by Baldree about a high percentage of low grades in her classes.

The coach said he did not remember telling Mitchell that the principal's son, Jimmy Baldree, had bragged to him that "my daddy made Mrs. Mitchell change my grade" but he did recall that she changed grades.

"I do remember there was this big to-do and Juanita had to do her report cards over. I know lots of grades were involved," Barcelona said.

"I don't know if Jimmy said it to me or if it was a rumor going around, but I remember the situation was tense."

"I don't want to hurt Juanita and I don't want to hurt Mr. Baldree. They have both been good to me."

Wilkinson, currently a third grade teacher at North Bay but a 13-year veteran with the school district, stated that she has never known Mitchell to do anything unethical or unprofessional.

She also stated that she had been told teachers could sign in no later than 7:45 a.m. this year, but that the start-up time for the school day had been changed.

Wilkinson also discussed the IMP and stated that she had found her copy in boxes of teaching materials when she moved into her classroom.

Sonnier testified that Mitchell had first worked with her at least 15 years ago as an aide in a summer reading program.

She said her later opportunities to work with Mitchell have centered only on reading.

"When I was observing her, we denoted where there were weaknesses and then we would confer. She always worked toward improvement," Sonnier said.

"I never had a problem with her not completing a task," she said. She added that she felt that Mitchell's skills have improved since the two of them began working on a special effort for improvement.

She also made comments regarding implementation of an IMP for third grade reading. However, Sonnier was unable to answer many of the attorneys' question about evaluation of a teacher's performance and the IMP, stating that once she provided each principal with enough copies of the reading IMPs for each teacher, the matter became the principal's concern.

Mitchell herself was the final witness called in her defense.

After presenting testimony regarding her educational credentials, Mitchell stated she had been recommended for reemployment each year until this year, when she received a registered letter on April 7.

She added that she had seen Oge in the cafeteria handing out letters notifying teachers that they would have contracts for the 1987-88 school year and that she had not received one of the letters.

Mitchell described how and when she had followed the procedures to request a hearing and obtain her records, when she had been notified by James that a second personnel file on her had been found and was available for her inspection, and obtaining that file from the superintendent's secretary.

She stated that a substantial part of the second file dealt with a 1984 Equal Opportunity Employment Commission Claim she had filed against the school district after being told by Baldree that she would not be allowed to assign her English classes an essay on a black American during Black History Month.

In addition, the file contained a letter from James reprimanding her for being late and a parent's complaint to Baldree regarding the time of a television special about Martin Luther King Jr. that she had asked her students to watch in connection with the black American essay.

She said there were also several documents pertaining to incidents where she had been reprimanded for posting a notice about a teacher work action on a lounge and for distributing circulars about a teacher rally, both without Baldree's permission.

She addressed the tardiness charges by saying that she had come during the assembly program at times, "but my students never entered my classroom without me."

Later in her testimony, Mitchell added that there were only two incidents when she had arrived after her students had entered the classroom, once when she had automobile problems and once when her own child was ill.

She also stated that she may have allowed someone carpooling with her to sign in for her while she parked the car, something she described as being a problem at North Bay.

In addition, Mitchell stated that the sign-in procedure has been changed since the first part of her hearing was completed May 7, and that a late sheet is now posted after 7:45 a.m. and the original sheet removed.

The teacher discussed the parent complaint in her testimony, stating that it centered mainly on the fact that the time of the program conflicted with the student's bedtime. If she had received the complaint rather than Baldree, "I would have respected her wishes," Mitchell stated.

She said the program was one of several assignments on using reference books and other outside materials to write the essay, with use of those materials being her main objective rather than "teaching history in an English class," as she said Baldree had called it.

In addition to telling her she was trying to teach something outside her subject area, Mitchell said Baldree told her the essay assignment would not be allowed.

"He told me this would not happen at Waveland Elementary, that they would not write about blacks."

She said she wrote to then Superintendent J.D. McCullough about the matter, explaining the choice of the assignment.

A later incident in which Baldree disagreed with her about the percentage of low grades in her classes led to a conference with McCullough, Mitchell said.

In that situation, she contended that the low grades in her fourth and fifth grade sections were caused by low reading levels and poor cooperation by the students.

Baldree, who she said told her he was concerned because about 65 percent of one of the classes and about 35 percent of another had failing grades, required her to add 10 points to each grade.

The teacher said McCullough had listened to her contentions then had told her that she knew the students best because she worked with them every day.

She stated that large percentages of her students had low grades both before and after that year, in which Jimmy Baldree was in one of her classes, but she has never been directed before or since to add points.

She said the principal's son was not one of the students who was failing, but that his grades had been low.

Mitchell also produced a letter from Baldree stating that she had been uncooperative when they discussed matters in which she allegedly had problems, and that he recommended her transfer to another school.

The letter included a statement that the reason he had not recommended her for nonreemployment was concern for her and her family.

She also stated that the IMP was not discussed at staff development meetings, that she had never been notified of its implementation, and that she had never received a copy and had therefore continued to use the equivalent of an IMP provided with other teaching materials in the Ginn Reading Program, which is used throughout the district in elementary grades.

When Gex asked her if she felt she had received a nonreemployment letter because she is black, Mitchell stated that she had wondered if that was the reason after hearing Blaize's statement in the first section of her hearing regarding a statement Penrose allegedly made.

Blaize had stated that Penrose had told him she felt the board might have reinstated him except that "...we have these other hearings coming up, especially the black hearings."

Over objections of Buttross and Rannels, who had tried earlier to call Penrose as a witness, Gex was able to receive permission from the board for Penrose to testify as long as the questions were limited to Blaize's statement.

She stated she had had two telephone conversations with him, not one as he had stated, and that she had not mentioned any future hearings or possible reinstatement.

"I said I wanted to assure him the board had deliberated considerably before coming to its decision," Penrose said.

"I do recall saying something to him about not being able to give him preferential treatment, but I don't recall the exact words."

She told Buttross she did not see any political problems arising from reinstating Blaize or not reinstating him.

Baldree, called to testify by Gex, discussed the parent complaint and a subsequent teacher conference but stated that he would have given Mitchell the same advice regarding teaching history in an English class had the black American essay assignment been an essay on George Washington.

He said he had had problems with her wanting to use black history topics during the entire month of February, which is Black history Month, for several years.

"We counseled at length about that," Baldree stated.

The principal said he had never stated that she was not to give assignments about blacks, but had advised her that he felt students should be able to choose their own writing topics.

As a rebuttal witness, Mitchell said she did feel the racial content of the assignment motivated Baldree's request it not be completed.

"Yes, especially the way he said it. He said we weren't going to have this at Waveland Elementary. It was his tone," she replied.

Bay well construction prompts street closing

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Due to construction of a new water well, Tenth Street beginning at Turner Street will be closed until further notice.

Although the street will be closed at Turner residents may access the road on Suebe Street, according to Norbert Redmond, director of Public Works for the City of Bay St. Louis.

The new well will be located on the floor Street right-of-way at Tenth Street.

Site preparation for the new 1,000 gallon water well was completed this week and drilling is expected to start by the beginning of next week.

Redmond said due to soft ground in the area, construction of a plank road may be necessary to complete the well.

He also said the well should be completed within 30 days, weather permitting.

The $159,200 well is being constructed by Layne Central Contractors of Jackson.

This well was recommended in a detailed engineering study by Garner Russell and Associates of Gulfport of the city's water system. It will play a major part in providing fire protection services to many annexed area residents.

Redmond also said there will be temporary street closings in the annexed area where sewerage and drainage work is being conducted.

Motorists are also asked to avoid Suebe Street if possible due to extensive drainage work underway in this flood prone area, Redmond said.

Welcome Center hosts series of events in celebration of National Tourism Week

The Hancock County Welcome Center is celebrating National Tourism Week with numerous displays, exhibits, demonstrations and refreshments throughout this week.

Welcome Center Director Sue Van Zandt said response has been great to the events so far this week and invites area residents to visit the center and see what is going on.

The activities schedule for the remainder of the week is as follows:

THURSDAY

9 a.m. to 2 p.m. - Hummingbird plant and feeder exhibit, Lydia's

Audubon Shop in Waveland.

10 a.m. to 3 p.m. - Toy Train display, American Restorations in Bay St. Louis.

9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. - Refreshments to be furnished by Diamondhead Garden Club.

FRIDAY

10 a.m. to 3 p.m. - Chair caning, Japanese embroidery, smocking, basket weaving, and blueberry muffins, Hancock County Home Extension Clubs.

10 a.m. to noon - Cotton spinning demonstration, Helen Currie of Pass Christian.

10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m. - Refreshments to be furnished by Landmark Restaurant of Bay St. Louis and Cpt. Kidd's Reef and Beer in Waveland.

SATURDAY

8 to 9 a.m. - Donuts to be furnished by Honey Cream Donuts of Bay St. Louis.

Live exhibit of a man working on a cast net, sponsored by the Seafood Industry Museum.

Also at various times during the week a space suit exhibit provided by the National Space Technology Laboratories will be placed in the center.

Among the events earlier this week include a display of antique cars by Dick Stamm of Bay St. Louis, an artist exhibit by Nadine Stamm of Bay St. Louis, a quilting exhibit by Betsy Nolan and Mary Gerard of Diamondhead, an ornamental egg display by Betty Jones of T.J.'s Ranch of Hattiesburg, a pine-needle weaving demonstration by Lucille Luke and a wood carving demonstration by M. Pearson of Pearlinton.

Refreshments were served during the week by The Chimney's Restaurant of Long Beach, Popeye's Chicken of Bay St. Louis and the Bay-Waveland Garden Club.

Saffron, so popular with Spanish cooks, is rather an expensive spice, but you need such a little bit of it to achieve that rich aroma and yellow-golden color, that it's fun to use in very special dishes.

But - stay that seasoning hand - a small pinch of saffron does wonders for this chicken dish, and others, but a heavy hand with the saffron will give the dish a medicinal taste. So, start with the merest suggestion of saffron, and add more to your own particular taste as necessary.

Incidentally, you may use a little yellow food coloring instead of the expensive saffron, if you wish, to give the dish that golden tinge, but you won't have the saffron aroma or taste.

This is a good way to use leftover chicken, also turkey or pork or shrimp. Here's:

SAFFRON CHICKEN

PILAF

2 cups or so diced, cooked chicken
2 cups raw rice
2 Tbsp. oil or fat
1 large onion, chopped
3 Tbsp. butter
4 cups broth or bouillon
Pinch of saffron
4 Tbsp. chopped parsley
Small garlic clove, minced
Pepper, salt to taste
Saute the onion in the oil or fat. Add the raw rice and cook, over medium heat, stirring the while, until the rice toasts to a light brown. Meanwhile, heat the broth or bouillon to boiling, pour over the rice, add pepper and salt, along with a pinch of saffron and the garlic. Cover, and cook over low heat for 15 minutes or so.

Add the diced chicken, stirring lightly, cover again and cook for ten minutes more. Mix in the parsley and the butter, fluffing the rice ever so gently. Pile nicely on a shallow platter or tray, and surround, if you wish with broiled tomato halves or slices. (Serves four.)

At other times, you may wish to saute a cut-up fryer, adding the pieces to the rice mixture instead of using diced chicken.

Senior Citizens Happenings

By Eve McDonald

We sure did have a beautiful day and a lot of fun at the fish fry at Buccaneer Park. Almost 175 attended and ate all of the fish John Rutherford and K. C. Mitchell put out for us, 90 pounds!

Lucille Boudreaux and the Ladies Auxiliary and members of the VFW assisted with the games and serving. We really do appreciate their help.

Distributing our many door prizes were Supervisors Sam Perniciaro, Bert Courge and Roger Dale Ladner. Sheriff Ronnie Peterson called our prize numbers for us and helped pass out the dessert. We thank Eddie Murtagh for coming out and for his financial assistance.

Those donating prizes were Security and Peoples Savings and Loan, Danny's Fried Chicken, The Eatery, Kmart, McDonald's Restaurant and The Sea Coast Echo.

We were so happy to have Rev. Charles Clark come by. He has been a real pastor to our center for so many years and we have missed him and thank God for his recovery.

Our thanks to RSVP and their staff also for helping with transportation and serving. We sure are blessed to be housed together as we can work as a team and help each other help you.

TRAVEL CLUB

They are really going to the dogs! That seems to be one of the trips many of you enjoy. The Mobile Dog Races outings cost $20 and include transportation, entrance to the track, program and lunch.

The next trip is June 22. After June 1 money will be accepted for reservations. Call Mrs. Oliver at the center for details.

COMING EVENTS

—May 22: White Elephant Games at the center, 12:30-1 p.m.

—May 25: Center closed - Memorial Day

—June 7: We have been given a booth for the Beachfront Festival which will be in the downtown business district of Bay St. Louis.

Hope all of you will come by our booth and make a few purchases. If you have anything you will donate to us for prizes or cakes and candies for sale, we will appreciate it. We will use any funds we make to enhance our program.

Our beautiful handmade quilt will be one of the big prizes to be awarded at the fair.

Our portion of the funds raised by this raffle will help with our next fish fry, picnic or other outing.

We appreciate the Merchants Association for giving us this opportunity to participate and raise some funds for the center.

So, come on out and help support our downtown merchants in this civic endeavor. We need the help and you need the benefits!

Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin said Wednesday he was contacting an engineer to have the actual elevation of the exact proposed site determined.

Also in the meeting, the board conducted extensive hearings for seven students recommended for expulsion from the bus or from school.

Among the reasons for expulsion were fighting, cursing teachers, disobeying teachers, attempts to strike teachers, harassment of other students and defacing school property.

At the meeting, Randolph also presented salary scales for several school district employees which includes an immediate salary increase and annual increases for each year of service in the district.

"I think all employees will be happy with this new salary schedule which brings district wages for office personnel among the highest in the state," Randolph said.

The board took the recommendation under advisement and plans to review comparison figures for workers in other districts along the coast and statewide.

In other business at the meeting the board:

—Approved the resignation of Jennifer Patterson, a special education teacher at Charles B. Murphy School effective June 1.

Port commission provides Ann Street repair funds

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission has agreed to provide the board of supervisors with money to help fix Ann Street.

Ann Street, located at Bayou Cadet in Beat One, had been subject of complaints from Gulf Marina owner Terry Ladner, who has appeared at two board of supervisors meetings to request help with the road.

The road serves all of the businesses at Bayou Cadet as well as the fishermen who keep their boats there, Ladner said.

He explained that rain consistently erodes Ann Street and that the road is becoming almost impassible in wet weather.

The supervisors had argued that they would like to repair the road, which is not presently paved, but Board President A.A. Kellar stated that the supervisors do not have enough money left at this point in the fiscal year to repair the road properly.

However, the board members had agreed to try to obtain some assistance from the port and harbor commission.

On Friday, Port and Harbor Executive Director Harold Olsen told the board that the commission had agreed to provide $5,000 for the road work because they believe fixing the road will foster economic development at Bayou Cadet.

In other business, the board:

—Agreed to lease a metal classroom building behind the former Hancock General Hospital building to the Women, Infants and Children nutrition program operated by the State Health Department;

—Heard a report from board attorney Gerald Gex, who stated that an appeal of a decision on discrimination suit filed against the Hancock County Election Commission last year by Thomas P. Clarke had been affirmed without an opinion in the State Supreme Court; —Approved a request from Election Commission Secretary Charles Gottschalk and Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin for inclusion of an enhanced 911 emergency service on the August ballot;

—Heard a complaint from a Cardinal Street resident regarding problems with unwanted pets being left to run loose in his neighborhood and posing a possible danger to children there;

—Officially changed the name of

Hancock General Hospital to Hancock Medical Center;

—Agreed to name appointees to the Hancock Medical Center Board for terms currently expired and to consider a request by Geraldine Lang for appointment of a black board member; and —Agreed to change Linda Curet, assistant manager at McLeod Water Park, from a part-time county employee to a full-time county employee.

The board's next regular meeting will be 9 a.m. May 28 at the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Pass Christian Fleet Blessing slated Sunday

The Eleventh Annual Blessing of the Fleet, sponsored by the Pass Christian Area Chamber of Commerce, will be held on Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Pass Christian Small Craft Harbor.

Father Ron Herzog of St. Paul's Catholic Church and the Reverend Travers Koerner, representing Trinity Episcopal Church, will bless the boats.

More than a dozen trophies will be awarded at ceremonies following a parade of boats, and the King Fisherman and Queen of the Fleet for 1987 will be announced.

Mayor Jake Erwin will serve as master of ceremonies.

Free seafood will be distributed, and dancing will follow to the music of The Shades.

Chairman is Erwin with Patrick McDonald and Ed Alley also serving on the committee.

Kool & The Gang to perform in Biloxi

What group has had more hits in the '80s than Lionel Richie, Michael Jackson, Prince, Madonna, or The Police? What band, in fact, is the top ranked group of the decade? The answer is Kool & The Gang.

Kool & The Gang will bring their string of 22 hits to Biloxi's Mississippi Coast Coliseum on May 29.

What can people expect from a Kool & The Gang concert? Here's the testimony of one witness, Mike Joyce of the "Washington Post." "If Steven Spielberg were to produce a combination '60s soul review and '80s funkathon it might resemble the concert Kool & The Gang put on at Merriweather Pavilion - indeniably down to earth and danceable."

"The LA Times" called a Kool & The Gang concert, "funk 'n' fury - that bordered on the downright nasty - a discovery worth celebrating."

And New York's "Village Voice" simply called the music of Kool & The Gang "funk heaven."

Kool & The Gang started their career trekking across the Hudson River from their homes in New Jersey to perform in Greenwich Village clubs. Since then, Kool & The Gang have had four platinum LP's and have created songs like "Cherish," "Celebration," and "Joanna" - compositions that according to BMI are among the most played standards in America. Their new album "Forever" went gold the minute it was released. It's first single, "Victory," hit the top ten, and its second single, "Stone Love," are expected to do even better.

Kool & The Gang have also won numerous awards including American Music Awards, American Video Awards, and BMI Awards.

St. Stanislaus seeking head coach

St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis is seeking to fill the positions of athletic director, head varsity football coach, and head varsity track coach for the 1987-88 school year, according to Brother Paul Montero, SC, principal.

Brother Paul's announcement follows the announced resignation of Vernon Powell, who currently fills those three positions.

"Whether the positions will be filled by one, two, or three persons will depend upon the qualifications, the background, and interests of the applicants," said Brother Paul.

Applicants are invited to submit resumes and references to Brother Paul immediately or to telephone the school (601-467-9057) to request an application form.

Applications will be received until Friday, June 19, with interviews scheduled to be concluded no later than Friday, June 26.

In announcing his decision, Powell said, "I thank all the people for their kindness and support during my five years as head coach of the Rock-a-Chaws. No matter where I am, this area will always be home to me."

"However, it is time for me and my family to get on with our lives. This was a hard decision."

"I have several possibilities open to me in other places; but our family has not made a final decision yet. I hope my successor will enjoy as much kindness and support as I've had here. It is truly a family atmosphere," Powell stated.

"Coach Powell has been a powerful influence for good in the lives of the young men he has coached at St. Stanislaus. Our school is a better place because of his presence with us," said Brother Paul. He will be missed.

Kirkland is new Lady Cat coach

Polly Kirkland, who guided the Hattiesburg High Lady Tigers to their 14-9 second winning record last season, has been named the women's basketball coach at Pearl River College.

Kirkland will be replacing Ned Eades, who recently resigned his position as both head baseball coach and girls' basketball coach.

"Kirkland has very impressive credentials and she is a very impressive person," said Dr. Ted J. Alexander, in his recommendation to the PRC Board of Trustees. "There were 18 people who applied for the position."

Dr. Alexander explained that the college was looking for a coach who could also teach in the academic division. Kirkland will teach two courses each semester in the math department.

The Pearl River vacancy had been advertised as a coaching and teaching position.

"She has proven she is a good women's coach," Dr. Alexander said. "I'm confident she will bring competitiveness to our program."

Kirkland, a former graduate assistant coach at USM in 1978-79, is an honor graduate of Horn Lake High School. She has a major in math education and physical education from USM as well as a master's degree in physical education and athletic administration.

"It has been a long term goal of mine to coach on the college level," Kirkland said. "Pearl River has excellent facilities and an excellent recruiting district. I can't wait to get started."

"I wasn't expecting to be in Hattiesburg for only one year," Kirkland said. "But when you get an opportunity like this you just can't overlook it."

Before coming to Hattiesburg,

Kirkland coached seven years at Union High, compiling a 146-80 record.

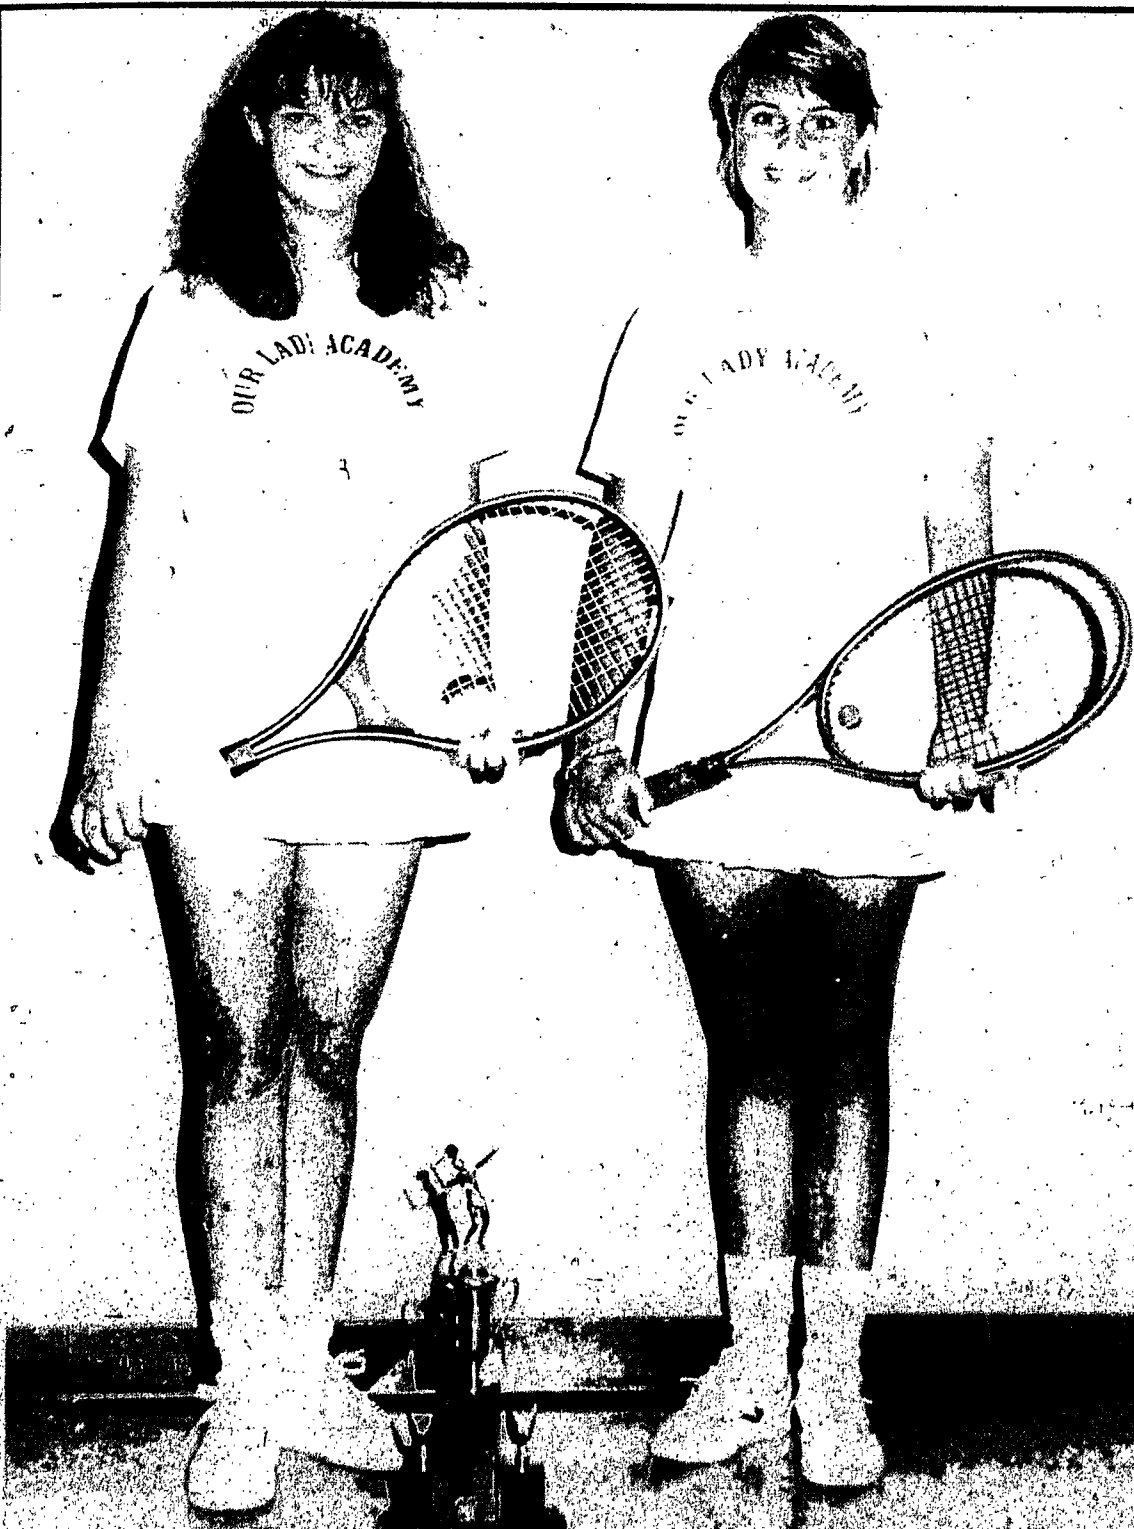

She had three teams to reach the Class 2A State Tournament and a fourth to reach the Class 1A State Tournament while at Union. In fact, she had a 97-11 ledger for the last three years at Union.

Kirkland comes from a basketball family. Her father, Burney, has been a successful Mississippi high school coach for the past 27 years. For the last 13 years he has been at Scott Central.

In 1986, the new PRC coach was the South Mississippi All Star Coach and in 1987 she was WDAM-TV 7 Girls Coach of the Year.

She was a member of the basketball team at Delta State and USM and is a member of the Kappa Mu Epsilon (mathematics honorary) and Kappa Delta Pi.

Kirkland says there are a few scholarships available and she plans to be recruiting next week for the 1987-88 season.

BICYCLE RACE

Cycles Plus Bicycle Club, in conjunction with the Hancock County Beachfront Festival, will sponsor a bicycle criterium race Sunday, June 7 in Bay St. Louis.

"In order to attract attention to the festival and foster a spirit of healthy competition among the Coast communities, we are inviting you to come participate in a special invitational race," said Earl Reed, coordinator.

This race will consist of only one lap of the 1.3 mile course and is designed with the non-cyclist in mind.

"We urge you to challenge your counterparts along the Coast to 'Be against you' in this unique race. Come out and support the Beachfront Festival. Experience the fun of competing cycling," Reed added.

Floating down the Ten-Tom

COLUMBUS—More and more visitors to the Tenn-Tom are touring it by boat with many finding it safe, slow moving waters and the pristine countryside through which it runs a pleasure for relaxation as well as a means for getting from one part of the country to another.

Cruise boats up to 180 feet in length ply the waterway as well as many privately owned cruisers and houseboats of the 30-foot and up class. As many as 100 or more of the long distance boats can be seen a month during the fall and spring when there are seasonal movements between the Gulf Coast and the inland United States.

One couple recently traveled from the Arctic Circle to the Gulf via the Tenn-Tom—in a pair of 17-foot canoes. A more conventional large boat on the waterway calls Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Naples, Florida, homeport.

For the small recreational boater the Tenn-Tom offers some 44,000 acres of water to fish and play on and some 1,000 acres of shoreline including recreation areas and at least one boat launching ramp in each like.

Sailing is not recommended except daysailors but vertical bridge clearances of 52 feet will accommodate most masts of boats under power.

Navigation charts may be obtained at cost from the Map Sales Office of the Army Corps of Engineers in Mobile. Boaters who plan to transit the Tenn-Tom en route to and from Another tip, if you are unfamiliar with locks and locking through procedures ask the Corps for a handy book titled "Locking Through" which explains the rules of the road. They are also obtainable from lock tenders along the waterway.

Lockages through the Corps of Engineers-operated locks on the Tenn-Tom cost you nothing.

A note of caution: large boat operators need to be aware that because of the narrowness of some stretches on the waterway they have to watch for small boats which can be swamped or damaged by their wake. They should cut back on their speed accordingly when approaching a small boat whether it is underway or anchored in a cove fishing. As elsewhere boaters are responsible for their wake and there have been a few unfortunate incidences when small boaters took direct action after being nearly swamped.

The small boater on the other hand who is in no hurry to get anywhere except, maybe, to an ever better fishing hole, will find the Corps and state game departments stocking of the lakes with game fish is leading to increasingly better yields of bucket-mouthed bass and slab crappie each year.

Water-skiing on the Tenn-Tom is a sport that is finding increasing popularity each year but skiers need to pick their spots both to assure long runs and avoid other lake users.

National sports magazine cites Tenn-Tom fishing

COLUMBUS—One of the most widely read sports magazines in the nation has named the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway as one of "America's 20 Hottest Bass Lakes."

The April edition of 'Sports Afield' specifically listed the Gainesville, Aliceville, Columbus and Aberdeen Lakes of the Waterway as areas where as many as 50 bass per angler-day are not uncommon.

"We are pleased that national publications such as 'Sports Afield' are recognizing the deserved reputation the Tenn-Tom has already acquired for bass and other types of sports fishing," stated Don Waldon, administrator of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Authority.

The waterway has already yielded 12-pound bass and the fishing seems to improve each year even in the face of increasing pressure on the lakes by fishermen," Waldon said.

The western Alabama impounded lake of Gainesville has 6,400 acres, while the Aliceville lake has 8,300 acres. This lake chain continues into northeastern Mississippi with the Columbus pool of 8,900 acres and the Aberdeen impoundment lake of 4,100 acres.

While not mentioned in the article, Bay Springs Lake, a 7,600-acre lake at the northern end of the waterway along with the canal or chain-of-lakes section of the Tenn-Tom between Amory and Fulton are also prime fishing areas for bass, crappie and bream.

The Corps of Engineers in constructing the waterway, left hundreds of acres of standing timber and other structures that provide excellent fish habitat.

Specific areas mentioned by 'Sports Afield' where abundant populations of bass may be found included Dead River, Lubub Creek, Cochrane Cutoff and Sipsey River in the Gainesville Lake; Pumpkin Creek, Hairston Bend and Cedar Creek in Aliceville Lake; and the clear waters of the creeks and streams that flow into the other lakes as well as the points and timbered islands along the main channel.

The 234-mile long waterway recorded nearly 5 million visitors, including recreationists, boaters and fishermen, in 1986 or 1.5 million more people than in 1985.

For further information about fishing and other recreational activities related to Tenn-Tom contact: The Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Development Authority, P.O. Drawer 671, Columbus, MS 39703, 601/328-3286.

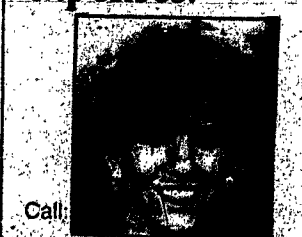

BAY SPRINGS MARINA is one of several full-service marinas already in operation or under construction that serve the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway. In background is Bay Springs Lock and Dam.

the Gulf of Mexico are advised to also purchase charts for the Black Warrior-Tombigbee system which is the 215-mile link between the Gulf and the lower terminus of the Tenn-Tom at Demopolis, Ala.

Another handy piece of literature for visitors touring the Tenn-Tom by boat is a brand-new free, illustrated, color booklet titled "Boating on the Tenn-Tom" obtainable from the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway Development Authority. The book is chock full of tips, information, maps, points of interest and recreation facilities both on and just off the waterway. Contact the Authority at P.O. Drawer 671, Columbus, Miss. 39703.

The navigation channels on both systems are maintained by the Corps at a minimum depth of nine feet and 300 feet wide and boaters should observe caution and have a good depth finder to avoid straying too far from the maintained channel.

Student trainer workshop scheduled

HATTIESBURG—The University of Southern Mississippi will offer individuals an opportunity to gain valuable practical experience during a beginning student trainer workshop or two advanced student trainer workshops July 12-15 on the USM campus.

The workshop, which costs $115 for full-time participants and $90 for day campers, will devote time to actual practical experiences ranging from taping to first-aid and emergency situations.

The beginner student trainer workshop is for students who have never attended either a USM or Cramer workshop. It will focus on taping and first aid.

The Advanced I workshop is for those who have attended a USM or Cramer workshop and the Advanced II workshop is for those who have already received some advanced training.

Jim Gallaspy, associate professor in the USM Department of Athletic Administration and coaching, will direct. USM will supply all training materials.

Pre-registration by July 3 is advised since enrollment is limited.

For more information, call USM's Division of Lifelong Learning at (601) 286-4190 or write Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406-5056.

TIM'S AUTO TIPS

Invest a few dollars in a can or bottle of matching touch-up paint for your car. After a period of nominal use, any car will start to accumulate road badges or chips in the paint. Touching up these spots periodically with matching paint will keep the car looking good and, more importantly, will keep water and salt off the bare metal where rust can form. Before using the touch-up paint be sure to wash the chipped areas thoroughly with mild soap and water. Rinse and let dry completely before painting.

Bassin' with the pros

by Trey Foerster

Tacklin' your tackle box "Your tackle box should be chosen just like everything else," stresses Randy Fite, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member. "It's based on how often you're going to use it."

"I use different types of tackle boxes," explains Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards and OMC Parts and Accessories Pro Staff member. "One is a kind of catch-all; I carry an extra box totally for plastic worms; I've got a box of spinnerbaits; and, I've got a box that stays in my boat all the time because I've got a little bit of everything in it."

Choosing the right tackle box is akin to picking out the proper rod and reel system, or coordinating the right electric motor for your boat's size. It's something that you have to rely on and "live" out of.

The tender loving care and re-feeding of tackle boxes is a better way to spend an empty evening than watching the boob tube. This small investment of what would have been idle time will pay off when you reopen the box on your next outing and find everything in its place, and a place for everything.

According to Dan Galusha of Milan, Ill., the first step in reorganizing your tackle box is to create a written outline of your tackle box's contents by breaking down your lure according to types (spinnerbaits, top water plugs, crankbaits, etc.), and then each of these into further categories as to size, type, styles and colors. Next, list the hooks, weights or jig heads you use with each lure in each category.

By reviewing this outline, you can further condense your tackle choice by what you find to be the most productive colors for your type of fishing. Then, at this point with your outline available, you can make a reasonable judgment as to which tackle box to use or acquire.

Major factors to consider in a tackle box, according to Galusha, are convenience, capacity and accessibility. Be sure to store your plastic lures in a separate box, because when the plasticizers break down, the oil spill could ruin other lures. Protective self-sealing plastic bags are recommended for storage within the tackle box to contain any oily breakdown. In addition, if you sort your plastic worms by color and size size with each having a separate bag, notes Galusha, you can easily remove the bag from the box and place it in a more convenient and accessible location.

Tackle boxes come in all sizes, shapes and colors. Be sure to purchase one that fits your needs and houses your lures as listed on the outline you completed. You just aren't buying a tackle box today, you're investing in the best possible protection for your lures and other fishing equipment!

Any bass boat driver knows that running a bass boat with a high horsepower engine at full throttle takes concentration and precise steering control. OMC Parts and Accessories has made that task easier with its new oil-impregnated control cables, available at Johnson and Evinrude Outboards dealers. Most steering and throttle control cables consist of rods and wire cable that are coated with grease by the manufacturer and inserted into plastic tubing. In time, the lubricant migrates out of the cables or dries up, causing them to stick and making precise operation difficult. The new OMC cables, however, feature plastic tubing that is permanently impregnated with silicone oil. Because the lubricant is permanently trapped in the tubing material, the cable retains its original, smooth operating efficiency for its entire life.

Have any questions you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot them down and mail them to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answers to your questions will appear in a future column.

Eagle softball team finishes strong

HATTIESBURG—Southern Mississippi's women's softball team ended the season on a positive note, winning nine of its final 10 games of the season.

"I was pleased with the way we ended our season," said first year coach Helen Grant. "Our squad played with more confidence and had more mental toughness late in the season, and I think we peaked at just the right time of the season, the end."

This year's team consisted of five freshmen with limited experience in fast pitch softball, one sophomore, five juniors and two seniors.

"I was pleased with the progress of the team as a whole even though we got off to a slow start," said Grant. "In the beginning, it was more of a teaching situation. But we got better throughout the season, and that's important."

The Lady Eagles won 18 games against 20 losses to match last year's victory total.

Lady Eagles who had outstanding seasons include junior pitcher-first basemen Kim Owens of Oak Ridge, Tenn., who led the team in hitting with a .197 average. She also had a 2.21 earned run average with 81 strikeouts while posting a 10-12 record.

Freshman outfielder Jill Vaughn of Louisville was the team's second leading hitter with a .273 average, and junior pitcher Robin Whittaker of Nashville, Tenn., finished third with a 2.57 average while also posting and 8-8 pitching record with 40 strikeouts and a 3.16 ERA.

Another freshman, catcher-third baseman Colleen Wagner of Clinton, Ohio, led the team in home runs with two, to go with five doubles and 14 RBIs.

"I look forward to next season," said Grant. "We will have seven starters back along with both pitchers. We should start a lot further along than we did this season, and that should make for an even better season."

Extension service

sponsoring horse clinic

MISSISSIPPI STATE—A statewide horse clinic will be held June 1-2 at the state fairgrounds and Coliseum Ramada Inn in Jackson.

The annual event is sponsored by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service and is open to the public.

"Several noted horse trainers and specialists will be featured on the two-day program," said Joe Baker, Extension livestock specialist. "The clinic is designed to provide practical and useful information to anyone interested in horses."

Some of the topics to be covered during the event include horse feeding, health care and regulations, showing attire and manners, training the speed event horse, riding techniques and more.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. on June 1 at the Coliseum Ramada Inn. The program begins at 10 a.m. on June 1 and 8:30 a.m. on June 2. There is a $5 registration fee.

For more information contact Baker at Box 5446, Mississippi State, MS 39762 or telephone 325-3516.

Information is also available from the county Extension office.

Mississippi hunter safety rated No. 1

JACKSON—It's official. Mississippi's hunter safety education program has been ranked number one in the nation by the hunter services division of the National Rifle Association.

The announcement came at the North American Association of Hunter Safety Coordinators banquet held April 30 in Reno, Nevada. Mississippi tied for the number one spot with Missouri.

In winning the award, Mississippi's hunter safety program was cited for its course content; its volunteer instructor training; agency participation; and participation in its statewide program by a diversity of support groups.

Accepting the award on behalf of Mississippi was L.J. Smith, the state's hunter safety coordinator.

At the meeting Smith was elected eastern vice-president of the North American, a position that places him on the group's board of directors. Smith was also elected chairman of the North American's academy committee which oversees professional development training for hunter education coordinators and their staffs.

The North American Hunter Safety Coordinators Conference is made up of the 50 states and 12 Canadian provinces.

Ole Miss accepting football season ticket applications

Although the 1987 football season is still almost four months away, season ticket orders are already being received at Ole Miss, according to Rebel ticket manager Virginia Hall.

"We sent out 60,000 season ticket applications and we expect sales to be up this fall," Mrs. Hall said, noting that her office had mailed those applications to 1986 season ticket holders, the Loyalty Foundation members, Alumni Association members, and others who ordered tickets a year ago.

"Interest in Ole Miss football seems to be high, even though the season isn't close to starting," Mrs. Hall said. "We've already gotten a very good response from the first wave of ticket applications we mailed."

Mrs. Hall said she felt Ole Miss has an "excellent home schedule" in 1987, a slate which includes Oxford campus games with Georgia, Vanderbilt, Arkansas State, and Southwestern Louisiana, plus Jackson games with Arkansas, LSU, and arch-rival Mississippi State. The season ticket package is being offered for $105 per ticket, while away games with Memphis State ($15), Tulane ($16), Kentucky ($14), and Tennessee ($16) may also be purchased through the process. "Our deadline for ordering season tickets is June 1," Mrs. Hall said. "We'll begin filling single game orders after June 1." "Pre-season ticket orders may be paid by cash, personal check, Visa, and MasterCard. Purchases may also be budgeted by post-dated checks. When paying by post-dated checks, we ask that they divide the total purchase and enclose their three checks with the order." A $2 mailing fee should be enclosed with orders. Season ticket orders or requests for applications should be directed to: Athletic Ticket Office, P.O. Box 247, University, MS 38677.

Matters of Health

Running dos and don'ts

If your spring shape-up includes running, before you lace up those sneakers and start pounding the pavement, consider some running rules that can help you get the greatest aerobic benefit and avoid injuries.

The biggest mistake novice runners make is doing too much too soon. Achieving a certain level of physical fitness before you start running is crucial.

Sports therapists list muscle strength, endurance and flexibility as fitness parameters that ensure a successful running experience.

For those with some running history behind them, abrupt changes in mileage, terrain or intensity can result in injuries.

Running coaches recommend building your running program by starting with a half mile every other day for the first three weeks. During this initial phase, increase your mileage by a quarter or a half mile once a week. After the third week you should run two days in a row with a day off in between.

Don't worry about your mileage time. Running should feel comfortable. If you can't carry on a conversation while you're running, chances are you're running too fast.

You should run 20 to 60 minutes, three to five times a week for maximum aerobic benefit. The time you devote to running is an individual decision, but sports therapists caution that individuals who run once every other week aren't making any noticeable cardiovascular gains.

The American College of Sports Medicine reports that maximum aerobic potential is reached when you're working at 60 to 80 percent of your age-adjusted, maximum heart rate. (This number is achieved by subtracting your age from 220 and multiplying that figure by 0.6 and 0.8.)

Running has medical benefits as well as aerobic benefits. It can help control high blood pressure, for example. However, individuals more than 35-years-old or those with heart conditions shouldn't begin a running program until they consult their physician.

Proper foot wear can help to prevent injuries once you're on the road. Protect your feet with a quality pair of shoes especially constructed for jogging. Shoes that fail to give maximum support and soften the shock are bound to cause knee and back problems.

Warming up before you run is extremely important to avoid injury. Begin with stretching exercises to improve the flexibility of the legs and torso. Use fluid motion only to the point beyond which you're no longer able to stretch.

Avoid bouncing or lunging stretches. Spend a few more minutes doing exercises, such as situps, low back exercises and calisthenics - jumping jacks and running in place are good warm-ups.

Running on soft, flat surfaces also helps to prevent injury. Asphalt roads with steep inclines can create unnecessary stress on the runner's body.

If and when running injuries occur, rest is the most recommended cure. To heal strained injuries, don't run for seven to 10 days, then only gradually begin again. If any pain persists beyond a week to 10 days, you should see your doctor. People who have chronic lower-back problems are advised against running all together.

St. Stanislaus recognizes student scholarship, leadership, service

The 17th annual Honors, Leadership, and Service Convocation was conducted by St. Stanislaus High School recently on the school's Bay St. Louis campus.

This event is sponsored annually by the Brother Peter Basso Chapter of the National Honor Society.

Purpose of the ceremony is to recognize the top scholars in the school, leaders of the various school organizations, and those students who have made significant service contributions.

Also, new members are inducted into the National Honor Society.

Invocation was offered by David Bast, chapter vice-president, National Honor Society.

Students who received certificates for leadership or service in their respective organizations include Scott Comeaux, Clinton Edwards, Jean Larrous, Tommy Lenz, Chris Schmidt, and Vincent Talazac, cheerleaders; Mario Alessi, Chris Arcement, Ben Schepens, and Jarrod White, Computer Club; Stephen Bouis, Brent Dantin, Ron Dantin and Roland Sternfels, foreign Language Club; Matthew Chustz, Jason McEwen, Joe Sellers, and Felix Sternfels, intramurals; Michael Casano, Jorge Ponjuan, Chris Schmidt, and Colin Schmit, Liturgy Committee; David Bast, Joe Gex, Louis Schruff, and Ya-Sin Shabazz, National Honor Society; Jonathan Morrill, photography; Clark Adams, Stephen Bouis, David Bourgeois, Tommy Lenz, Robert Maynard, Steve Montagnet, Joel Thames, and Michael Vegas, Science and Math Competition (High School); Scott Arcement, Paul Bernadas, Mike Cromwell, Noah Denson, Blake Harrison, Ron Kayes, Tony Nguyen, Scott Peterson, Scott Niolet, Samuel Simpson, Anthony Sperance, Nick Walker, Jarrod White, and Joe Williams, Science and Math Competition (Junior High); Sean Kenney, Tommy Lenz, Jack Lightfoot, Andrew St. Pierre, Steven White, and John Winters, Service League; John Baxter, David Diboll, John Endom, Jack Lightfoot, and Joe Sellers, Student Council; Clark Adams, Stephen Bouis, David Bourgeois, John Lazzara, and John Montz, Varsity Quiz Bowl; Chuck Breath, John Endom, Chris Kern, Stanley LeBlanc, and Sandy Sarpy, Yearbook.

The President's Honor Roll is the highest academic honor a student at St. Stanislaus can receive. To be included on this honor roll a student must achieve a perfect 4.0 grade point average for the school year. A plaque recognizing their membership on the President's Honor Roll was awarded to David Bast, Michael Cromwell, Ron Engel, Scott Niolet, Ya-Sin Shabazz, and Michael Vegas.

The Academic Honor Roll is earned by students making the alpha honor roll for the school year and possessing a 3.5 grade point average or better.

RORY KING

Rory King named HNC Star Student

The Mississippi Economic Council reported Rory King has been selected as Star student at Hancock North Central High School.

Star Students are selected on the basis of academic excellence. American College Test scores and scholastic averages are considered in designation of the school's Star Student.

King has received numerous awards including algebra I and II, geometry, civics, drama, English and band.

He was also selected a member of the Hancock North Central High School Hall of Fame.

The Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition (STAR) Program encourages and promotes academic achievement among Mississippi's high school seniors, explained C.D. Galey of Hattiesburg, chairman of MEC's Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition (STAR) Committee.

"Top scholars are being designated as Star Students in over three hundred participating schools in Mississippi. From these Star Students, the top 20 students in the state are selected, and the Council awards scholarships to the state's top three Star Students and their Star Teachers."

Funds for these scholarships are provided by the Phil Hardin Foundation of Meridian.

King's extracurricular activities include Student Council president, Junior Class president, Beta Club, Foreign Language Club, Yearbook staff-photographer and sports editor, basketball, Boys' State, "I Dare You" award, Governor's School and Exchange Club Student of the Month.

Each Star Student is asked to designate a Star Teacher, a teacher who has made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement.

Sandra G. Reid was selected as Star Teacher.

Reid teaches English, speech and yearbook. She has taught seven years.

Both the Star Student and the Star Teacher will receive certificates from the Council, in addition to being eligible for competition for scholarship awards.

Tori Cazier is CEHS governor's scholar

Alexa Victoria Cazier, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Gary R. Cazier of Gulfport is a Governor's Scholar for the 1987 session of the Mississippi Governor's School.

Tori Cazier, a junior at CEHS, is a member of the National Honor Society, Mu Alpha Theta, and The Society of Distinguished American High School Students. She is assistant editor for the school yearbook, the Pigeonhole, and a member of the Scholar's Bowl Team.

In the 1987 Math and Science Tournament at Mississippi College, Cazier placed second in the state in biology. Cazier participates in the Gulfport Literacy Program and Centerstage productions.

The Governor's School is a residential honors program established in 1981 on the campus of the Mississippi University for Women. The school is designed to provide academic, creative, and leadership experiences for a limited number of rising high school juniors or seniors who have demonstrated exceptional ability and achievement in their studies and who show high intellectual and creative potential.

Eligible students must be nominated by their high school principal. Once nominated, all candidates are carefully screened by a panel of distinguished educators, and selections are based on the panel's recommendations.

Ticket availability outlined for Papal Youth Rally

NEW ORLEANS—The committee planning the Youth Rally for the visit of Pope John Paul II has announced that only those young people between eighth grade and age 23 will be eligible to attend the rally scheduled for Sept. 12 in the Louisiana Superdome.

One adult chaperon for each 14 young persons between eighth and 12th grades will also be invited to attend.

Sister Pat Cormack, S.C.S.C., co-chairperson for the rally, said the 12 participating dioceses in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and west Florida will receive a portion of the tickets based on the percentage of young people taking part in school and religious education programs in their respective dioceses.

"The other 11 dioceses will devise their own distribution system for their allocation of tickets," Sister Pat said. "Our only restriction will be that ticket recipients be between eighth grade and age 23 in September of this year."

A portion of the tickets will also be set aside for distribution at the national level.

Rally tickets allocated for youth in the Archdiocese of New Orleans will be distributed on the following percentage basis:

—40 percent of the tickets will be distributed through the Catholic elementary and secondary schools.

—25 percent of the tickets will go to Catholic church parishes for young people who do not attend Catholic schools.

—15 percent will go to college and university students.

—15 percent will be set aside for special requests from public and private schools within the archdiocese.

—5 percent will be reserved for youth groups of other religious denominations.

Sister Pat said by the middle of March a letter will go out to all groups indicating the number of tickets set aside for them. They will be asked to complete an order form by early May. Tickets will be distributed in the late summer.

Policies regarding the distribution of tickets to other appearances of Pope John Paul II—including the large outdoor Mass at the University of New Orleans—are now being devised and will be announced in the near future. There will be no charge for tickets to any of the papal addresses.

PAULA TRICHE, president of Mississippi Association on Children Under Six, has recently participated in a Memphis, Tenn., leadership workshop conducted by Southern Association for Children Under Six. Triche has served as a kindergarten consultant for the Hancock County School District.

Youth Brief

DESIGNER AWARD
HATTIESBURG—University of Southern Mississippi student Ellen Western Alexander of Long Beach was presented the USM Department of Interior Design Senior Portfolio Award for the best collection of interior design projects, compiled over a four-year period.

A President's and Dean's List scholar, she is a member of the American Society of Interior Designers at USM.

Upon graduation from USM in August with a degree in interior design, Alexander plans to work in Bay St. Louis with Marcia Artigues' Interior Designs.

Interior design is a department of the USM School of Home Economics.

CHRIS KERN shows his first place-winning poster in the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 Poppy Poster contest. Kern is a ninth grade student at St. Stanislaus. His poster along with two other first place winners are on display at Merchants Bank on US-90 and will sent to Jackson for judging on the state level.

STEEL SCOTT, fourth-grade student-at Coast Episcopal School, is a first place winner in the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 Poppy Poster contest. This poster will also be judged on the state level.

DARÉ DELESDESNIER, right, is a first place winner in the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 Poppy Poster contest. Brother Paul of St. Stanislaus accepted a plaque for the school for turning in the highest number of posters in the contest.

Nutritional trends continue

HATTIESBURG— Nutrition-conscious Americans and a trend toward eating more healthy foods have caused the food service industry to respond with a variety of menu options, according to a University of Southern Mississippi dietitian and nutritionist.

Concern about weight, fitness and wellness have been translated into a desire for menu items lower in fat, sugar, calories and salt, said Dr. Allene Vaden, dean of the USM School of Home Economics. Vaden said menu items have been created that fulfill not only consumer nutritional needs, but also meet their overall menu item quality expectations.

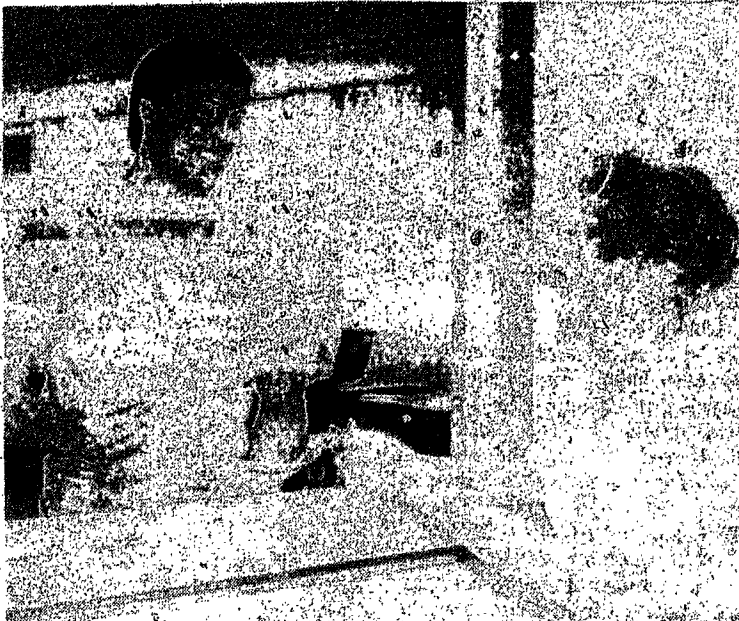

"The menu items are addressing more than restrictive diets such as low-calorie, low-cholesterol, low-fat or low-sodium diets," she said, adding, "they are emphasizing health, fitness and wellness advantages of nutritious menu items."

While the fast food segment is somewhat less responsive than other industry areas, Vaden stressed that heart-healthy foods, light cuisine and lean choices are meeting a light eating trend of Americans that she predicts will continue.

Vaden explained, "While most Americans are aware of health and nutrition issues, they are not alike." She outlined four distinct consumer groups as those that include traditional, weight conscious, health conscious or uncommitted eaters.

"Traditional eaters are 'meat-and-potatoes' people who tend to eat what they like when they like. Taste is more important to that group," Vaden noted, "while weight-conscious consumers pay more attention to the caloric content of the foods they eat. Health conscious consumers choose foods to comply with their desire to follow dietary guidelines, while uncommitted consumers tend to skip meals or eat small meals and snacks, still trying to make up their mind about the way they feel about health and nutrition."

"In general, consumers are changing their away-from-home eating habits by ordering menu items with less salt and sugar, and eating more fish and salads."

REGISTRATION TIME AGAIN—Tom Demboski of Bay St. Louis, pre-registers for summer and fall classes at the University of Southern Mississippi using Southern's Helpful Automated Registration Process (SHARP). SHARP, a fully automated computer registration process implemented for the first time in November 1986, has shortened registration lines considerably. Eventually, it will allow students to register using any touch-tone telephone. Demboski, the son of Tom and Daryl Demboski of Bay St. Louis, is a senior marketing major at USM.

USM to sponsor Coast piano seminar

GRETCHEN ZEPERNICK, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Zepernick of Diamondhead, has received a Dean's Award for Academic Achievement at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. She maintains a 4.0 average and is a member of Phi Eta Sigma Honor Society.

A three-day music seminar for piano teachers will be conducted this summer on the Gulf Park campus of the University of Southern Mississippi.

The seminar will be held June 1-3 in Hardy Hall on the Long Beach campus and will allow piano teachers from across the region to convene in a relaxed atmosphere for a series of discussions, lectures and recitals.

Seminar sessions will be led by USM's School of Music keyboard faculty and three guest clinicians—University of Oklahoma associate professor Dr. Jane Magrath and independent music teachers Patricia Tuley and Ellen Gunn.

Serving as a professor of music at Oklahoma, Magrath has developed a piano pedagogy program that has become nationally recognized as one of the leading schools in the country. She also teaches in the piano pedagogy laboratory, working with all levels of students and the advancement and supervision of student teachers in the program.

Magrath is an active performer and researcher. She writes a regular column for Clavier magazine and currently is engaged in a videotape analysis of the musical and technical problems of sample students.

During the Gulf Coast seminar, she will lead sessions on a variety of topics including: "Teaching Suggestions for Developing Effective Practice Habits;" "From Bastien to Beethoven: Pacing the Standard Teaching Literature to Advanced Level Playing;" and "Building Technique in Pre-college Students."

Other seminar sessions will address a number of topics, including: the transition from piano to organ; winning a contest from a judge's perspective; benefits of ensemble experiences for students and teachers; the virtuoso pianists; the independent music teacher as a professional; and "The Bull in the China Closet, or Introducing Student to French Music."

Magrath will present a recital on Monday, June 1 at 7:30 p.m. USM harpsichordist Dana Ragsdale will present a recital at 6 p.m. June 2.

Seminar sessions will run throughout both days.

For more information and registration details, contact seminar director Dr. Mary Ann Stringer, Southern Station Box 5081, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39406-5081, or call (601) 266-5363.

Keep getting a regular check long after you stop working from MONY's Retirement Funder.

Look at the following example. It shows you how you can get $42,000 a year and more — substantial life insurance coverage from the day you join the Funder. The example has you starting your Funder at age 35.

Monthly Contribution (Age 35)	$ 235
Yearly Income at 65	$ 42,000
Guaranteed Insurance Benefit	$150,000
Insurance at 65	$750,000
Total Cash Received by 80	$630,000
(Plus $150,000 of guaranteed insurance still in force)

Call or send in the coupon now.

No matter what your age, how much you want to contribute, the MONY Retirement Funder will send you a check year after year, long after you stop working.
